The Day My State Switched Places!

It was late August. Michigan was feeling really hot, and he was getting tired of these long, humid days of summer! He called up his pal Alaska. “Do you want to switch places?” he asked.

“Sure!” replied Alaska. “I’ll pack my bags!”

Michigan couldn’t wait! He quickly got on a plane and waved to Alaska as they passed by each other. After a long flight, he was finally there.

“Whoa,” he thought to himself. I’m not used to all these mountains. I’m starting to feel a little carsick! And brr! It is cold in Alaska. I wish I had packed my winter coat!

After awhile, Michigan began to miss the toasty summer air. He felt homesick for his five best friends, the Great Lakes. And he knew fall was just around the corner, which meant the leaves would soon be changing colors. It was his favorite time of year.

Alaska and Michigan decided it was time to switch back. Switching places was fun while it lasted, but they couldn’t wait to get back home!
